CREDENTIALS

Access to the COP grounds is restricted to observers who are granted credentials. The credentials must be obtained through accredited organisations like IETA. The credentials are not transferrable, so only the named individual can use them to gain access. IETA will issue confirmations to credentialed members with instructions for time and location to pick them up. Please read all instructions carefully and be prepared to authenticate your identity with a passport. UN Security strictly enforces the rules of use throughout the two weeks of COP meetings.

In these days of heightened security concerns, UN Security is extremely cautious. They have been known to revoke credentials for any violation of access or abuse of observer status, and they have the power to sanction the sponsor organisations (such as IETA) for any violations by its members. We support the UN Security team's efforts to keep us safe, so we urge you to honor their requirements. This means you must guard your credentials carefully and report any problems promptly to the IETA Secretariat.
